DISTINGUISHED ARRIVAL.—Brig. Gen. Connor and two gentlemen of his staff arrived by this morning's coach from Camp Douglas, near Salt Lake City. The General will receive a warm welcome from many former acquaintainces made here last fall, as well as from others acquainted of his character by report. He is a military man of tried ability and an Indian fighter of towering tact. The District of Utah having been ceded from the Department of the Pacific to that of Missouri, Gen. Conner came here in obedience to a telegram from Major General Dodge, to await further orders here, which have not yet reached by mail. It may be that the General will be assigned to duty in superintending the Overland route from Kearney to Salt Lake, still having connection with his own District, proper.

As soon as may be, we shall inform our Colorado readers on the subject.—Denver News, March 20th.

A SPECIEEN OF THE LOT.—G. B. Lamar, one of the hottest of the fire-eaters, one of the no re-constructionists, no submissionists, one of the blow-the-top-of-your-head-off if you mention such a thing, took a prominent part in the citizens' meeting recently held in Savannah. He had been engaged in blockade running, and seeing not only his butter, but his bread itself, in jeopardy, took a practical view of "the situation," and made haste to submit—not that he loved chivalry, etc., less, but that he loved (speak it not in Gath) the almighty dollar as dearly as any money-seeking Yankee that ever lived.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, APRIL 5, 1865

Words of Loyalty.

We regret that want of space has prevented the earlier publication of the excellent address, recently delivered before the Y. M. L. Association, at Salt Lake City, by the Rev. N. McLeod, which we presented to our readers yesterday. Replete with sentiments of loyalty, which invest professions of Christianity at the present time, with additional claims to our earnest attention, it shows that genuine religion does not necessarily exclude the claims of patriotism nor separate its devotees from the hopes and aspirations of our common humanity. On the contrary, it should kindle a holier zeal on behalf of such a cause as ours and intensify every noble emotion of the patriot.

Never since the muse of history began to record the deeds of men, has Providence so plainly manifested His purposes as during the present civil war, before which any other Government on earth must have fallen in hopeless ruin as cities are swallowed up in the convulsions of an earthquake. For him, therefore, who is wont to lift his thoughts to the source of all Good, not to trace the result direct to the great All. Cause were worse than infidel profanity.

Moreover, the impression conveyed in the language of the reverend gentleman is so different from the sardonic sneers and jubilant anathemas, heretofore so frequent on the lips of false religious teachers in our vicinity, chuckling with hateful diabolism at the ruin they fancied was approaching, that no one can fail to note the perfect contrast and, in his own feelings, may find a standard whereby to measure the relative claims to respect of those from whom they emanate.

Yet these latter would have us believe them loyal! Men who have jeered at the sacrifices of patriotism, perpetrated ribald jests at the priceless blood of brave men poured out upon the altar of that country these new-found patriots had hoped to see destroyed, as their shameless words attest; wretches who gloated over the carnage of sanguinary battle-fields with the hideous glee of fiends, wishing and predicting an equal fortune to either host, and basing the fruition of their own unholy desires upon the destruction of both in one common ruin, such men lay claim, in the hour of National triumph, to one single feeling of loyal devotion to the common-weal. The sublime impudence of this claim surpasses belief. Were not the Satanic composition known to be of "sterner stuff" the Devil himself might be expected to appear next in the character of a Saint and ask to be received without question as the paragon of purity.

Talk of Jesuitism! Let the disciples of Loyola come hither to Utah and learn lessons in diplomacy from a greater than he—one! nay, here are scores worthy to be his teachers. But, it is well that we have a contrast to such sanctimonious duplicity and, to such sources of instruction and loftier sentiment, we take pleasure in pointing our readers for words of loyalty and wisdom.

"I will not strike thee, bad man," said a Quaker to a fellow who had affronted him; "but I will let this billet of wood fall on thee!" and at that moment the "bad man" was floored by the weight of a walking stick that the Quaker was known to carry.

BY PACIFIC TELEGRAPH.

[SPECIAL TO THE DAILY UNION VEDETTE.]

HURRAH! HURRAH!! HURRAH!!!—The glorious and soul cheering news, that Richmond has been taken, is confirmed. We were handed the following dispatch on Monday evening: Omaha says, Richmond is taken. Petersburg evacuated, one hundred pieces of cannon and many thousand prisoners captured.

[Signed] CARLETON.

Chicago, 10 p. m., April 3d.

Richmond was occupied by our troops under Gen. Weitzel, at a quarter past eight this Monday morning.

New York, March 29th.

The Tribune's army of the Potomac correspondent says: The rebel General Gordon was reported killed in the battle of the 5th. He was directing the attack on Fort Steadman and as soon as our forces had re-taken the fort a counter attack was made by the left of our line upon the enemy, it being thought they had weakened their line there. An order was given to mass troops on the fort, their chosen point of attack, and after some sharp fighting the left of the line gained five miles of ground. The results of to-day's fighting are—rebels badly repulsed in their attack, and the left of our line has gained another step towards the South Side railroad.

Sheridan with his whole cavalry force crossed the James yesterday to join Grant's army.

Head-Quarters, army Potomac, March 26th.

The engagement yesterday was no doubt the most important and successful for the Union armies that has taken place since their arrival in front of Petersburg. The enemy was defeated at every point, and have lost heart in their cause. The number of prisoners brought in by the 9th corps is reported at 1,800. The loss in this corps is not far from 600. A number of prisoners are in our hands. The result of the days operations is 2,271 enlisted men and 68 officers, besides 150 wounded in our hospitals.

New York, March 28th.

The Tribune's correspondent in the engagement on the 19th, says: The rebels attacked Sherman's center heavily, but were driven off the field, leaving their dead and wounded in our hands. Our loss is not heavy. Sherman pushed forward rapidly and obliged Johnston to fall back towards Smithfield. Another fight obliged them to rush through Smithfield and make for Raleigh, when Sherman entered Smithfield. Sherman has made a junction with Terry and Schofield, and is now strong enough to sweep everything before him.

There is a decided decline in dry goods, especially in standard goods. Brown Sheetings, Ticks and Bleached. One leading jobbing firm reports New York Mills, Bleached, at 42½ and others in proportion. Stark Mills, Brown, at 41½; Amaskeag, Dunns, at 55. Prices are rapidly being based on cotton at a current rate of 50 cents per pound.

Grant has ample evidence that Lee has sent a large number of troops to reinforce Johnston, and his whole force now will not number more than half of Grant's.

New York, March 28th.

Gen. Cox advanced from Kinston towards Goldsboro on Sunday evening, and was already falling back, leaving the road clear, but destroying the bridges and culverts.

March 29th.

The Herald's army of the James correspondent says: On the north side of the river affairs remain undisturbed.

On Sunday, President Lincoln, Grant and Porter, reviewed the 24th and 25th corps.

Washington, March 29th.

The Richmond Examiner of the 27th contains the following: Petersburg 25th. Genls. Bushrod, Johnson and Gordon stormed the enemy's breastworks on our left, capturing his works and five hundred prisoners, including Gen. McLaughlin and other officers. The fight was terrific. The loss to both sides was heavy, and Gen. Terry was badly wounded. The enemy massed their artillery and poured a terrific fire in our ranks, and caused our troops to fall back to their original position. The Yankee Gen. Warren is reported killed.

Information from City Point to the 28th says: Picket firing was kept up last night, and the killed on both sides were exchanged, the enemy showing more courtesy than he has heretofore.

The following are the essential points in a general order issued to the army yesterday:

The enemy with a temerity for which he has paid dearly, massed his forces and succeeded, through reprehensible want of vigilance in the third brigade of the first division of the 9th corps in breaking through our lines, capturing Ft Steadman and batteries No. 9 and 10 & 11. Prompt measures were taken by Maj. Gen. Parke and the firm bearing of the troops of the 9th corps and 3d division, this corps together with energy and skill displayed by Gen. Hartsuff who quickly repaired the disaster. The enemy was driven from Fort Steadman and our lines, with heavy losses in killed and wounded, leaving in our hands 8 battle flags and over 1900 prisoners. The result of the day was a defeat of the enemy's plans and the capture of a strongly entrenched picket line, the capture of 10 battle flags ond 2,800 prisoners. The Lieut. General heartily congratulates the army in the order and says two lessons are to be learned from these operations; one that no fortified position however strong will protect an army from an intrepid and audacious enemy unless vigilantly guarded, the other, that disaster or misfortune is not irreparable where energy and bravery are displayed in a determined effort to recover what is lost and to promptly assume the offensive.

City Point, April 2d.

TO STANTON—The battle of the 2d resulted in the following losses to our side. The 20th corps killed, 51, wounded 463 and missing 302. 9th corps killed, 60, wounded 338, missing 506. Our captures by the 2d corps were 361. The 30th and 6th corps pushed forward and captured the enemy's strong entrenchments and turned the guns against him and we still hold them. They are trying to retake them. The battle continued till 8 p. m., the enemy losing heavily. Humphrey estimated the enemy's loss in his front at three times his own and Gen'l Wright in his front doubles that of ours. The enemy brought in a flag of truce for pemission to collect his dead between the picket line and the main fortification which was granted. I am in receipt of Shermans report of operations from the time he left Fayetteville up to the 22d last. It shows hard fighting, resulting in a severe loss to the enemy in killed and wounded, also over one thousand prisoners. His own loss he says will be covered by 2,500 men, since he left Savannah, and many of them but slightly wounded. (Signed)

GRANT.

[Additional by the Asia with dates two days later than by the Damascus.] The London Times, in its reviews of the President's Inaugural, says: It reveals his disposition and opinion more completely than many verbas compositions which have proceeded from his predecessors. The Times admits he has fulfilled his duties, which destiny imposed in him, with firmness and conscientiousness, but without a feeling of exhilaration at the success or sanguine anticipation of coming prosperity. This address appears to be intended to repress the more sanguine expectations of the Northern people and to intimate to them that fresh exertions and services will be necessary for the attainment of their object.

A failure is announced in sterling of Bigbie, a merchant in London, with liabilities about £150,000—quite an item. Sterling of Burstam & Co., Hull & Bombay, with liabilities from £200,000 to £300,000. These failures are said to have been chiefly caused by osses in the blockade running at rebel ports—Bully Similar rumors are afloat as to other failures. D. Lewis, a merchant of London, has suspended. Drafts drawn for large amounts by the Confederate government at Richmond on their financial agents in Liverpool; Frazer, Templeton & Co., were, after some days delay, refused acceptance, and allowed to be protested—one draft alone £270,000. The alleged cause is want of advices. It is asserted that the drafts are not expected to lie over beyond a few days.

In Parliament, Gregory gave notice that he should at an early day, ask what steps the government had taken to protect the property of British subjects in the Confederate states prior to the closing of the war.

The weekly returns of the Bank of France show an increase of cash on hand of over fourteen millions of Francs.

Arrived from San Francisco Feb. 5th, ship Bordelas, at Callao.

"SUE MUNDY" NOT A WOMAN—WHO AND WHAT "SHE" IS.—Our readers have often heard of this notorious guerilla leader, who has passed, these two years back, for a woman. This allegation is denied by the Louisville Journal, which says: "The reputed woman is Jerome Clark, of Simpson county, Ky., and cousin to Hon. Beverly L. Clark; also cousin to Tandy Clark, now in the State prison for robbing the mails. He is about twenty-two years of age, of medium feminine stature, small feet and hands, face beardless and quite handsome, voice soft and feminine—all together making a counterfeit so perfect that even John Morgan, on a certain occasion mistook him for a woman. He belonged to Morgan's command, and was with him on his raid through Ohio. His first experiment at deception in woman's attire was played off on his commanding General. He was neatly dressed in Bloomer costume—wore a fancy military cap, containing a wig of woman's hair, which in long tresses flowed down carelessly over his shoulders. Thus attired, he was introduced to his chieftain by some of his comrades in arms as Miss Sue Mundy, who, under the irresistible promptings of patriotism, was earnestly solicituous to obtain a position in his command favorable to the development of her highly intensified sympathies and prowess in behalf of the rebellion. Morgan, struck with the beauty and heroic bearing of Miss Mundy, at once consented to enroll her and give her a desirable position. But, on inquiring particularly in reference to her name, she replied, "Jerome Clark, sir." When the merriment resulting from his successful experiment had subsided, Morgan remarked, "All right boys; we will have use for Sue Mundy." It followed that Clark, in the character of Sue Mundy, rendered invaluable service to John Morgan.

"WHAT do you call this?" said Jones to the landlord, "it hasn't quite enough hair for plaster, but has too much for hash."

AN ADDRESS TO THE PEOPLE

BY A RESIDENT OF UTAH.

ARTICLE 10.

During the month of September 1857, the militia of the Territory was called out, and the several divisions of it drilled under their respective leaders, preparatory to the great conflict from which they expected to emerge "more than conquerors." In the following month, the Great Salt Lake County and Southern divisions were ordered to Echo Cañon to dispute the passage through it of the United States' troops, whom, if they persisted in treading the Mormonized soil of Utah, and they could not conquer or exterminate by force of arms, they there purposed to put hors de combat by rolling rocks off the mountain sides upon them as they marched along.

On the 20th day of the same month, the Northern Division of the Militia, under Col. Chauncey W. West, numbering about five hundred men, were sent from Ogden with instructions to rendezvous in Marsh Valley. The object of this expedition was to intimidate Col. Alexander, who, it was reported, was making a detour with a portion of Gen. Johnson's command with the intention of entering Utah by the Northern route. The more effectually to accomplish their purpose of intimidation, the Mormon commander sent two of his command in the direction of Col. Alexander's camp for the avowed purpose of reconnoitering, but for the real purpose of having them fall into the hands of Colonel Alexander's troops. This reconnoitering party was the bearer of an order from the commanding General to Col. West authorizing him to take five thousand men to oppose the entrance into the northern settlements of Col. Alexander's troops, and the design of having them captured by the latter party was the hope of intimidating that party into a retreat by the prospect of their being overwhelmed by a collision of his detachment with an army of five thousand men acquainted with every peculiarity of the country through which he must pass, and skilled in all the cunning and artifice of mountain warfare. The fact that the order was nothing more than a boastful rhodomontade; that it was but part of an ably devised scheme to deter his progress Utahward, and that Col. West, to whom these dispatches were directed, though he was ordered to take five thousand men, had but five hundred men in his whole command, and they, all that could then be collected in the whole section of country north of Farmington were unknown to him. Neither did he understand the vaunting duplicity of the church leaders in those times; their common practice of issuing orders solely as scare-crows; orders which from the very nature of their surroundings, they well knew could never be obeyed, or the Utah Mormons to day would be less eloquent in praise of their military chiefs, less deconcil story in their detraction of the U. S officers, and more venerative of the mighty power against which a thousand times their force, a million times their skill and resources, have for four years made so desperate, yet so futile and unsuccessful a struggle.

As it was, however, the effect upon Col. Alexander of receiving this order, was to cause him to beat a rather precipitate though orderly retreat to the rendezvous of the main army at Fort Bridger. An express reached Colonel West at Marsh Valley on the 30th of October, bringing the report that Col. Alexander had retreated to Ham's Fork. The command therefore, left Marsh Valley the same day, and in their passage through Box Elder, received from Bishop Smith of that place, eight men as prisoners of war—"Gentiles" whom the Bishop had arrested. Of them I shall speak hereafter under another head.

"YOU will lose nothing in the long run," said an eminent divine, from the pulpit, "by being kind, affectionate, and cheerful." Before night the eminent divine flogged six of his children within an inch of their lives, and gave his wife a tremendous "blowing up," because she had forgotten to sew a string on his night-cap.

A person, speaking of a drink he once had occasion to indulge in, says he could not tell whether it was brandy or a torchlight procession that was going down his throat.

"I tell you, wife, I have got the plan all in my head." "Ah, then its all in a nut-shell."

Local Matters.

SAD ACCIDENT.—T. Baine, a Corporal in Co. "B," 3d Batt. Inf., left Camp in company with Mr. Chas. Gilman, a discharged soldier, for Ruby Valley, on Monday last, for which place they had started with a team and loaded wagon, with the intention of locating in that vicinity as farmers.

They had proceeded but a few miles on their journey when a sad and serious accident occurred, which it is feared may cause the death of Baine. He, by some misstep, fell under the wagon, which passed over his breast, fearfully crushing him, and it is feared will prove fatal.

A. A. Surgeon Walcott, of this post, was immediately dispatched to his relief, and every assistance or comfort that can be rendered him will be done. Baine is a fine man, was universally respected by his comrades, and it is to be hoped that his accident may not be found so serious as apprehended.

Yesterday was a bright sunshiny day, but a raw wind made it one of the coldest days experienced in a month.

Isn't the Telegraphic news glorious? Wonder what will the denunciators of Blue Coats, Brass Buttons and "Lincoln skins" have to say now?
